

SUTHERLAND CASE WILL CLOSE TO-DAY

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Big Stone Gap, Va., August 25.—The defense in the Sutherland case tried to establish the fact that the cashier was the victim of the directors, who borrowed large amounts, more than 10 per cent, of the capital stock, and induced largely for each other, and required him to pay their overdrafts and carry paid checks as cash items. Attempts were made to prove that $100 in gold was stolen from the bank about June 15, and $1,000 in currency on July 1. These thefts and the irregularities of directors were alleged to be the cause of the flight.

Motive for the flight as declared by witnesses was the knowledge of the thefts and the condition of the bank which he thought best to leave until things blew over, and on his return would be better able to get justice. Sutherland emphatically denied having any money with him. He claims that he carried as much as $1,000 in paid checks of one of the directors in his cash from account, and large sums for the other directors.

The cross-examination began about 9:30 o'clock, and the prisoner was unable to prove by the backs of the bank many of the statements made. A night session was held, and the case is expected to close to-morrow night. Sutherland is composed and clear, and shows no sign of nervousness.

MOROCCAN CRISIS MAY BE DELAYED

Interrupted after Ambassador Cambon reopened the discussion in writing with Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter, the German Minister of Foreign Affairs, a new international conference might follow, or a long period of strain and suspense in which neither power would do anything except glare at the other.

Getting Ready for War.
Both France and Germany are carrying on war preparations, and each power appears willing that the other should know it. In addition, as a diplomatic maneuver there is a little rattling of the sword to show mutual carnage.

Nevertheless, in a time of tension such as this, war must be among the contingencies considered by statesmen. Frequently this week in the conversation of serious Frenchmen than it had been used in any previous period since 1906. Generally it is used interrogatively in the sense that "can it be possible that we must fight?" and "is Germany pushing us into war?"

Only 135 of the 5,000 members failed to vote.

Demand of the organization backed by this vote, will be laid before Illinois Central officers in Chicago Monday, and should they refuse to negotiate, federation officers here declare the strike will be ordered Tuesday.

EXPLORER FINDS NEW ARCTIC TRIBE

Principal purpose was to study the different tribes of Eskimos in the Northwest, and more especially an unknown tribe living in Victoria Land.

The explorer is about thirty-three years old, and a graduate of Harvard University. He is more than six feet tall, of robust physique and has devoted many years to anthropological research, particularly among the Eskimos of the Northwest.

Several letters have been received from him, describing his experiences and hardships. The letter received yesterday was addressed to Herbert L. Bridgman, an authority on Arctic exploration.

Stefansson was accompanied by Dr. R. M. Anderson, of Harvard. During the long, dreary journey to the land of the midnight sun the party met with many a hardship, the explorer writes. Once, when the food supplies ran out and no relief was in sight, he says they ate the skins from their fur clothing. In midwinter in 1909 Dr. Anderson fell ill of pneumonia and lay for a month too ill to be moved.

"Had it not been that we had a small cache of flour, etc., at Cape Perry we should not have been able to pull him through," the explorer writes.

NORRIS IS HELD FOR HIGHER COURT

Remanded to Jail Without Bail on Charge of Murder.

MEMORIALS FOR CAPITOL

Requisition on Governor of Florida for Zack Marks. Charters by State.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Raleigh, N. C., August 25.—J. J. Norris this evening was remanded to jail without bail to await trial in the September term of Wake Superior Court on the charge of the murder of J. B. Bissett on the night of August 12.

The hearing continued from 10 o'clock A. M. to 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon, when Police Justice Walter Watson, at the conclusion of a spirited argument by counsel, declared that since Norris had offered no evidence to counteract strong circumstantial evidence presented by the prosecution, he considered that there was sufficient probable cause shown to justify holding the prisoner for the higher court.

Briefly stated, this evidence, as brought out by different witnesses, was testimony by the negro hackman, Haywood Penny, that after he had driven Bissett, Mrs. Yerby and Norris some miles, the latter became violent, drew his revolver and threatened to kill him, and then refused to give Bissett a revolver; the testimony of J. B. Norcum, inmate of the Soldiers' Home, that he saw a large man like Norris riding behind the hack when Bissett and Mrs. Yerby passed, and the testimony by Mrs. Yerby that Norris became angry in the hack, and that after he left them, and while it would appear that Norris was riding on the back of the hack, Bissett discussed Norris in a manner that was calculated to cause Norris to commit the murder.

Furthermore, there was the testimony of the negro hackman, that when Mrs. Yerby ran to the hack after the shooting, she averred that the man who shot Bissett was just like Norris.

The argument for the prosecution was by Solicitor H. E. Norris and W. E. Pace and for Norris by B. M. Gitting and W. C. Harris.

The latest addition decided upon today was the testimony of J. A. McCord, former Republican, and until last year postmaster at South Norfolk. He said when C. Bassom Slemp was made chairman of the Republican State Committee, he wrote McCord that all the officeholders would be assessed 5 per cent. of their emoluments for campaign purposes, and that as long as he held the office, he made the annual payments on that basis.

He quit the Republican party "for good and eternally," he said because Alvah H. Martin and L. M. Nicholas would not allow candidates for the House of Delegates nominated in Norfolk county. The result was the county gave a majority for Kent, and that he went to work to help elect Judge Mason as Governor.

Mr. McCord said he and the editor of the Manchester Bee began the demand upon Mr. Slemp for the nomination of Republicans in Norfolk county. H. O. Humphries, of Bedford City, asked the witness several questions after the attorneys had concluded their examination.

The general trend of the testimony at today's sessions of the investigation was to establish the proof of fusion in Norfolk county between Republicans and Democrats, of a certain faction. Several witnesses were examined, and better progress was made than on yesterday.

The session was given over to further testimony offered by the "Straightouts." When it was sought to show that "Straightout" Leader M. G. Long was not a naturalized citizen, Long produced a certificate of naturalization, obtained by his father in 1898, before the son became of age in America. The certificate was not of record, but showing age and bearing the signature of a former deputy clerk on the court was accepted as genuine. The end of the affirmative case is not in sight.

The investigators, who are from different parts of the State, are becoming restless.

SLEMP ASSESSED OFFICE HOLDERS

Evidence Brought Out Before Norfolk County Primary Probe Committee.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Norfolk, August 25.—One of the most interesting features of the Norfolk county primary fusion probe today was the testimony of J. A. McCord, former Republican, and until last year postmaster at South Norfolk. He said when C. Bassom Slemp was made chairman of the Republican State Committee, he wrote McCord that all the officeholders would be assessed 5 per cent. of their emoluments for campaign purposes, and that as long as he held the office, he made the annual payments on that basis.

Lexington Banks Consolidated.
Lexington, N. C., August 25.—Another important transaction in financial circles was consummated here today when two strong banks, the Commercial and Savings, and the Bank of Davidson, consolidated. The officers of the Commercial and Savings will be the same as before, J. W. McCary, president; E. J. Buchanan, vice-president, and J. F. Deaderick, cashier. James Adderton, who has been cashier of the Bank of Davidson, has been elected assistant cashier of the Commercial and Savings.

TWO DAY COACHES PLUNGE 40 FEET INTO RIVER BED

Planks and timber were requisitioned and a field hospital established.

Hundreds Need Treatment.
It was more than an hour before many of the injured could be removed, and special trams from both Geneva and Rochester brought physicians, nurses and medical supplies. Hundreds await treatment at the railroad station at Manchester, a elder mill and an ice house were used to give temporary shelter and treatment to the suffering.

It was necessary to chop through the sides and bottom of the day coaches, and the work of removing the victims moved with painful slowness. Death had come swiftly to many, a large number of the dead having had their skulls crushed in, when they were thrown against the car seats and projections. The mortality was high among the older passengers, most of whom were veterans of the Civil War and their wives.

The dead removed from the wreck and brought to a morgue at Shortsville, near here, at 9 o'clock to-night, numbered twenty-three. Two other persons died in Rochester from their injuries. Several other persons are living in hospitals at Rochester, Geneva and Clifton Springs, with probably fatal injuries.

The number of injured will reach sixty.

Owing to the fact that the derailed dining car in falling down the telegraph poles with scores of wires, telegraphic service was broken, and will not be restored until to-morrow. Aid had to be summoned by telephone.

Coroner D. A. Ellsine, of Shortsville, took charge of work at the wreck, assisted by Coroners Armstrong, of Camandagua, and Flint, of Geneva.

Coroner Armstrong was assigned particularly to investigating the legal aspect of the disaster, and after a preliminary examination of the scene, he said: "It looks to me as though the track was bad, and the cars were probably a broken rail. It looks as if the first truck of the first car that was derailed left the rails about sixty feet from the west end of the bridge. We will hold no inquest until we identify all of the bodies."

At 10 o'clock to-night, while the wrecking crews were trying to remove part of the wreckage, the day coach that stood on end fell into the gully, adding to the debris at the bottom, under which it is possible a few more bodies may be concealed.

A harrowing aftermath of the wreck is the scantiness of means of identification of the victims. Rescuers, in their haste to remove clothing and effects from the victims, neglected to keep the various articles near the bodies, and many of the dead were found laid out at the morgue, where campers and visitors mixed up garments and identification things. The breaking down of the telegraph service was confusing because of the inability of those who held the safe to send news to any relatives. It probably will be days before the full list of dead is made out. The features of some are so badly damaged that identification in any case will be difficult.

A pathetic sight was witnessed in the Manchester station to-night when the gold braids and the more pretentious headgear of the Sons of Veterans, were piled up with baggage, bloody garments, umbrellas and other personal effects, most of which are the property of the dead.

The wrecked train was in charge of Conductor James Hillock, of Geneva, with Engineers Bowman and Callahan. Conductor Hillock had just stepped from the dining car to the next car in front when the dining car left the track. He pulled the signal for brakes, and the engine responded instantly. Engineer Bowman, of the second engine, was leaning upon his cab window, and as he turned on the brakes he looked backward to learn the cause of the trouble, and saw the cars toppling off the bridge.

Passengers Give Assistance.
The cars which gave prompt assistance. Appeals for doctors and nurses were sent to the nearby places, and special relief trains were run from both east and west. So great was the number of injured that there was work for all.

A number of persons had miraculous escapes. One woman was all that remained alive from a family of four. Two men jumped through a window, and escaped with slight cuts. Two theories for the cause of the wreck have been advanced by railroad men. One is that it was caused by a broken rail or the spreading of the rails. The road was blocked for several hours, and it was necessary to send the west-bound trains over the New York Central tracks via Lyons.

Bellboy's Trial Nears End

On the right is Paul Geidel. With him is James McGrae, another bellboy, accused of complicity in the crime.

New York, August 25.—Most of the important evidence before the prosecution was in when the trial of Paul Geidel for the murder of William H. Jackson, continued to-day. The district attorney expected to finish his case in time to permit the defense to open this afternoon.

Geidel has to controvert the sworn statements of three witnesses who say he confessed the crime in all its details. Two of these witnesses were policemen and the other Geidel's roommate, Patrick McGrae. The cross-examination of these and other witnesses for the prosecution yesterday indicated that the defense would try to prove that Jackson and Geidel were friends, and that Jackson died of heart failure.
